Four High Schools Recognized for Youth Safety Efforts

As a result of a grant from the Allstate Foundation, four area schools in Charlotte's SAVE (Students Against Violence Everywhere) chapter will receive free SAVE affiliation and mini grant funds, educational materials, training for school and community activities, ongoing support and technical assistance for SAVE's youth safety efforts. Twenty elementary, middle and high schools throughout the state of North Carolina and more than 10,000 students are involved in the year-long initiative, including Harding University High School, Highland School of Technology, Concord Performance Learning Center High School and Parkwood High School. Senior Haley Abernathy from Highland School of Technology has been named as President of the 2015-2016 Youth Advisory Board.

SAVE, a national nonprofit headquartered in Raleigh, is committed to preventing violence and advocating for student safety in schools and communities across the country. The organization joined forces with The Allstate Foundation in 2005.
