Raleigh- The National Students Against Violence Everywhere Summit, otherwise known as the SAVE Summit, gathered in Raleigh Saturday.

Around 300 teens from 10 states across the country met at the McKimmon Center on NC State's campus for the event.

The teens presented in breakout sessions on topics such as peer pressure, bullying, and safe driving.

"SAVE is all about bringing students together and empowering, engaging, educating, and encouraging them to be positive role models," said Carleen Wray, Executive Director of SAVE.

Local high schools Chapel Hill High and Garner Magnet High made presentations during Saturday's national event.
